

May 25, 2016 10:42 BST

Norwegian CEO: “Edinburgh is central to our UK growth with future plans for new transatlantic routes”

- Norwegian reaches 1 million passenger milestone at Edinburgh Airport and outlines ambitions for further growth in Scotland, including transatlantic routes
- Norwegian backs Gatwick Airport expansion to “deliver greater competition that will allow all UK airports to grow”
- Gatwick CEO hails success of Norwegian Air; says it “illustrates very clearly the fundamental changes that are taking place in the aviation world.”

Europe's third-largest low cost airline, Norwegian, has today said that it is considering new transatlantic flights from Edinburgh, and has urged Scots businesses and policymakers to support the case for Gatwick Airport's expansion to promote more competition in the UK airports market and more choice for Scots.

Norwegian CEO Bjorn Kjos was in Scotland with Gatwick Airport's CEO Stewart Wingate and Gordon Dewar of Edinburgh Airport to make the case for a more competitive UK airports sector and to engage with Scottish business and political figures.

Norwegian began flying from Edinburgh Airport in 2009 and has now flown over 1 million passengers with services to six destinations in Scandinavia, Spain and the Mediterranean. CEO Bjorn Kjos today outlined Norwegian's ambitions for further new routes from Edinburgh, including the possibility of new transatlantic flights using state-of-the-art new aircraft such as the new Boeing 737 MAX.

Norwegian CEO Bjorn Kjos said: "Since we started flying from Edinburgh in 2009, we have grown to 6 routes and have now carried over 1 million passengers - but this is only the beginning of our plans for expansion. Edinburgh will play an important role in our future UK growth and our long-term ambition is to deliver new, direct long-haul flights from Edinburgh.

"We will also be looking into how we can create new routes from Edinburgh to feed into our fast-growing global network at London Gatwick, which would further boost the choices available to Scottish passengers.

"The new fuel-efficient aircraft we have on order will make it possible to launch low-cost transatlantic routes from Edinburgh in future, creating affordable fares and more choice for business and leisure passengers in Scotland. We look forward to continued growth at Edinburgh Airport including plans for our first low-cost long-haul routes in the future.

"It is only through greater competition between airlines and airports that Norwegian has been able to continue its growth - that is why we back Gatwick as the right choice for the UK's next runway.

"An expanded Gatwick would deliver increased competition, allowing all UK airports to grow and creating more choice and lower fares for passengers.”

Gatwick Airport CEO Stewart Wingate said: “Bjørn and I are in Scotland today to make a basic but increasingly compelling case for more competition in the UK airports market to the long-term benefit of Scottish passengers and tourists. The success of Norwegian Air in recent years, particularly at Gatwick and Edinburgh, illustrates very clearly the fundamental changes that are taking place in the aviation world.

“Scotland is far less dependent on London than it ever was and having lived and worked in Scotland, I understand that Scots value choice and specifically the choice to fly from their local airport. We agree with that view, which is why we have built our runway proposal around competition and choice, and do not have any time for the old-fashioned monopoly being promoted by our competitors at Heathrow.”

Norwegian at Edinburgh Airport – facts and figures:

- Norwegian started flying from Edinburgh in 2009 and now serves 6 business and leisure routes: Copenhagen, Oslo, Stockholm, Barcelona, Tenerife, Malaga
- Since 2009, Norwegian have now flown over 1 million passengers to and from Edinburgh
- 2015 was Norwegian’s busiest ever year at Edinburgh with over 200,000 passengers
- Over the last 12 months (May 2015 - April 2016) Norwegian has flown 228,000 passengers to and from Edinburgh Airport

Norwegian in the UK:

- Norwegian operates from London Gatwick, Edinburgh, Birmingham and Manchester Airports to more than 40 destinations worldwide
- In 2014, Norwegian introduced the UK’s first low-cost, long haul

flights to the U.S. from London Gatwick- the airline now flies to 8 U.S destinations with fares from just £149 one way

- Norwegian has one of the youngest aircraft fleets in the world with an average age of four years, and is the only airline to offer free inflight WiFi on flights from the UK to Europe
- Norwegian has been voted 'Europe's best low-cost carrier' by passengers for three consecutive years at SkyTrax World Airline Awards, and was also the first airline to be awarded the 'World's best low-cost long-haul airline' in 2015 by SkyTrax

Further information from:

Norwegian Air

Press Office, 020 3820 4890

Gatwick Airport

Press Office, Gatwick Airport: 01293 505000

Contacts

For journalists only

Press Contact
Norwegian Press Office
press@norwegian.com
+47 815 11 816

Marketing/sponsorship requests: marketing@norwegian.com

Press Contact

Marketing/sponsorship requests: marketing@norwegian.com