Norwegian launches its 15th new direct route from London Gatwick

Fuerteventura is the latest destination to be added to Norwegian's ever-growing route network from Gatwick Airport.

Flights to the popular Spanish Canary Island start up on 30th October. Norwegian will fly twice a week between London Gatwick and Fuerteventura.

Norwegian has become a significant player at London Gatwick and recently established a UK base at the airport. The airline currently has three aircraft based at London Gatwick and has increased its weekly flights from 198 in 2009 to 320 by the end of the summer.

Apart from popular destinations in the Nordic region, Norwegian offers flights to several popular Mediterranean holiday spots such as Malaga, Alicante, Nice and Barcelona. The airline also currently offers more than 100 weekly departures between the Nordic region and London. The British capital is one of Norwegian's most popular destinations in its route network.
